Shabbat Shalom!

The Greek texts are corrupt on this word

Because the first sabbath after Passover is the "first of the Sabbaths," the text should be rendered, "And we sailed away from Philippi in the middle of the days of unleavened bread, and came to them to Troas after five days, where we used up [the] seven days." This last phrase must refer to the 7 days of ULB and not to their supposedly staying a whole extra week in Troas. This correction 1. subtracts two weeks from Paul's journey allowing him to reach Jerusalem by Shavuot, 2. agrees with his hurried progress (Acts 20:16), and 3. Agrees with the definition of the "first of the Sabbaths" being the first one after Passover.

at sea between Cyrus and Tyre

They stay for seven days in Tyre (Acts 21:4). They decide they don't have to hurry so much

Arrive in Ptolemais

Arrive in Caesarea

They stay for "some days" in Caesarea. This is the minimum time span for this. Likely they stayed another week, because Paul would have agreed to go with others to the feast on the usual schedule and not earlier than necessary.

Journey on foot to Jerusalem (64 miles, about 10 to 15 miles per day with stop overs). Paul would have gone at the pace of a typical pilgrim here since they were in a group together.

Meeting with Jerusalem Elders

Paul makes his vow

If a week is added by sailing after unleavened bread, and Acts 20:6 taken to mean they stayed a whole week in Troas, then Paul arrives a week late in Jerusalem and misses the feast of Shavuot.
