Tell el-Hayyat in the Jordan Valley is the only site that covers the transition from the Early to the Middle Bronze Age. At this site, Phase 6 was dated to the Early Bronze IV and Phase 5 to the Middle Bronze I. Based on the radiocarbon dates and the stratigraphic sequence presented by Steve Falconer and Patricia Fall in this volume, this transition can be dated to around 1900 BCE (Hofmayer).

Fifty years and one month; Josephus, Against Apion. 1.80.

Town by town the Hyksos worked their way up the Nile until the breakaway dynasty 16 was crushed.

The length of the 13th dynasty is given at 453 years by copies of Manetho. Egyptologists agree the number is excessive and revise it to 153 years. Weigall states that the copiests frequently write "4" in mistake for "1". One of the versions of Manetho gives 134 years for the duration of the 14th dynasty (A History of the Pharaoh's, by Arthur Weigall, 1927). Weigall says it is likely that the 13th and 14th dynasties ended at the same time. Since Weigall's time the position of Sheshi in the 15th dynasty has been cleared up (cf. Ben-Tor), and we may conclude either that the vassal status of Maibre Sheshi's subornate dynasties ended during his reign, and he became the absolute ruler of all Egypt, or they were reduced to no better than governors.

The Edomite Empire reaches its maxium, stretching from Egypt to the Euphrates, and Arabia to Syria. It is an empire of pastoral nomads skilled with horse and bow. The deserts were greener in those days. As knowledge of the truth begins to fade in Edom, the Amorites begin to reduce Edom in size until Edom occupies only territory south of the Dead Sea.

Bietak plots an epidemic in stratum c of Avaris with mass burials with a date around 1720 BC and a conflagration in the palace for stratum b1 in area F/I dated 1632 BC, or at least as close as I can extrapolate his chart. It is not hard to suppose that the graves have been dug down and have intruded into previous strata representing only 88 years. Similarly, presence of Khyan seals in strata dating to ca. 1600 BC has been challenged by Tell Edfu sealings making him contemporary to Sobekhotep IV, who reigned 1741-1731 BC, which is a displacement of the seals on the same order as the separation of the plague from the destruction of the palace.

The material culture of Israel was considerably more Egyptianized in common with upper Egypt, and this is part of the reason that the Hyksos loathed them, because they themselves preferred to retain a Canaanite material culture. When the Exodus occurred, Israel left a population vacuum in the North east delta and Avaris. This was replaced by less Egyptianized Asians from the western delta in the long recovery period after the Exodus under Apophis. Bietak dated the culture change correctly to the time of the Exodus.

The last ring of the Santorini olive tree dates 95.4% probability 1632 BC to 1611 BC. Pumice from the Eruption did not show up in Avaris or Tell-el-Ajjul until after 1550 BC because the trade networks continued to obtain pumice from other more profitable established sources 80 years before going to Thera to get it. Also the Thera Eruption ruined trade networks connected to it, and any Thera pumice that floated to the east would be biofouled and unsuitable for use.

The population of Israel is about 1.8 million.

The remaining kings in the lacunas were undoubtedly Hyksos vassals.

Foundation of the low Middle Chronology

Venus Tablet solution in 1638 BC is rendered acceptable when corrected by Scriptural data from Joshua chapter 10. A 12 hour shift in sunset times affects the beginning of months and the sequence of 29 and 30 days months improving the lunar match enough to render it non-objectionable. Whereas before the long day correction the lunar match was decidedly poor, after correction, the error rate is acceptable. Lunar matching has itself never proved to give certain results. But a very poor match isn't good. The Assyrian eclipse in 1841 BC, and the Mari eponym lunar eclipse in 1773 BC combine with the 1638 Venus solution and 1594 BC solar eclipse to place the Amorite chronology on a solid foundation.

Josephus' Assis is the same as Maibre Sheshi, were 49 years are recorded in Against Apion. Arthur Weigall states that 1 and 4 are easily confused in Egyptain (1927), and so I suppose that 19 years are meant. 49 years is much too long in light of the whole dynasty. The dynasty total comes to 209 years, and 19 years is reasonably left over when the other reigns are accounted for. Assis > sasis > sasi > Sheshi.

The 15th Dynasty attacked and overcame the 16th dynasty, possibly only a few years before the Exodus, reducing it to vassalhood; Dedimose II (aka Tutiamos?) may have been the king that lost to Sheshi, and once against Egypt was reunited, if only briefly.

The Turin King List may read 10, 20, or 30 + x years for the damaged entry prior to Apophis.

Now as Jannes and Jambres withstood Moses, so do these also resist the truth: men of corrupt minds, reprobate concerning the faith. 2 Tim. 3:8.
